

Investigation Report – Wikipedia

Website Name

Wikipedia is a free online encyclopedia that provides information on a wide range of topics and is created and maintained by volunteers worldwide.

Purpose

The main purpose of Wikipedia is to provide free access to knowledge and information for people around the world. It allows users to read and contribute articles on various subjects.

Founder

Wikipedia was founded by Jimmy Wales and Larry Sanger. Their goal was to create a free and collaborative online encyclopedia that anyone could access and edit. They believed that knowledge should be freely available to everyone, regardless of location or background. Since its launch, Wikipedia has grown into one of the world's largest online information resources, with millions of articles available in multiple languages. The platform is maintained and continuously improved by a global community of volunteer contributors, making it one of the most successful collaborative projects on the internet.

Launch Date

Wikipedia was officially launched on January 15, 2001. It was created as a free online encyclopedia that allows users to create, edit, and share knowledge collaboratively. Since its launch, Wikipedia has grown rapidly and become one of the most visited websites on the internet. Today, it contains millions of articles in multiple languages and serves as a valuable source of information for students, researchers, educators, and the general public around the world

Headquarters

Wikipedia is operated by the Wikimedia Foundation, which is headquartered in San Francisco, California, United States. The Wikimedia Foundation is a non-profit organization responsible for supporting Wikipedia and several other free knowledge projects. It manages the technical infrastructure, ensures the website remains accessible, and works to promote free access to knowledge worldwide.

Owner / Organization

Wikipedia is owned and managed by the Wikimedia Foundation, a non-profit organization that supports free knowledge projects around the world. The foundation provides financial, technical, and administrative support to Wikipedia and its sister projects. It is funded mainly through public donations and is committed to making educational content freely available to everyone. Through its efforts, millions of people around the world can access reliable information without any subscription fees.

Conclusion

Wikipedia is one of the world's largest online knowledge platforms. It provides free access to information and operates through a collaborative editing model. The website uses secure HTTPS communication, a robust DNS infrastructure, and scalable architecture to serve millions of users globally.

